Equity Outlook

Indian equities under-performed emerging markets during the month (Nifty50 & MSCI EM was down by 3.5% and 1.6% respectively). Overall global weakness was driven by hawkish US Federal reserve which believes that higher restrictive monetary policy is needed to control inflation, which further increased recession risk in US.

High frequency indicators (like E-way bill, GST collection, loan growth etc) continue to suggest healthy level of economic activity. Healthy reservoir levels, helped by above normal south-west monsoon has brightened prospects of Rabi season which in turn may help revive rural demand. November 2022 Consumer Price Index (CPI) softened to 5.9% YoY (fallen below RBI's upper tolerance band of 6% for the first time in 2022) from 6.8% in October, helped by sharp drop in food prices (driven by lower vegetable prices). October 2022 Index of Industrial Production (IIP) declined by -4% YoY (a 26-month low) due to slowdown in exports and consumption demand. RBI slowed the pace of repo rate hike to 35bps (as compared to previous hikes of 50bps each). RBI monetary Policy Committee (MPC) revised its FY23 GDP growth forecast lower to 6.8% YoY from the earlier 7.0% YoY, while keeping FY23 inflation forecast unchanged at 6.7%.

We believe that despite weakening global demand, domestic growth outlook may remain healthy given a) Stable consumer outlook and optimistic business outlook in terms of demand conditions and sales prospects; b) Uptick in economic activities (as evident from high frequency indicators); and c) Easing commodity prices and supply side pressures. We intend to accumulate high quality stocks in portfolio from medium to long term perspective.
